

METRO PHOENIX AREA DRAINAGE MASTER STUDY/PLAN UPDATE

The Flood Control District of Maricopa County, in association with the City of Phoenix, is conducting the Metro Phoenix Area Drainage Master Study and Plan Update (ADMS/P). This study will identify flooding problems and develop strategies to reduce flooding hazards within metro Phoenix. Once completed, the study will be used to identify, define, and budget future drainage improvement projects.

The original Metro Phoenix Area Drainage Master Plan identified and recommended the construction of basins and storm drain systems to decrease flooding hazards in identified problem areas. Since the completion of that study in 2008, there have been development changes and new infrastructure built within the watershed necessitating an update to the study.

The Metro Phoenix ADMS/P Update will:

- Create a database of known flooding and drainage problems.
- Develop state-of-the-art models using new aerial mapping.
- Assess flooding hazard and previously proposed solutions.
- Restudy the floodplains in the project area.
- Prepare a plan to provide potential solutions for flood-prone areas.

Study Area:

The Metro Phoenix ADMS/P Update focus area covers approximately 90 square miles and is located mostly within the city of Phoenix; however, it also includes portions of the cities of Scottsdale and Tempe along the eastern boundary. The limits of the study are shown on the attached map.

How Could the Study Affect You?

The results of this study will be used to provide awareness of flood hazards and risks so that residents may be better prepared and make informed choices to reduce their risk of flooding. This study will also reassess and refine existing proposed solutions using updated computer modeling tools and aerial mapping.
